Home-based business bylaw to be reviewed

At tomorrow's regular meeting, City Council will be reviewing the proposed home-based business regulations in the draft Zoning Bylaw, and an item regulating 'assembly in a private residence'.

This review comes out of the incident on Parker Dr. with on-street parking for A&M Tandem Massage. The home-based business has since been issued a fine for using more floor space than permitted in the bylaw & using more on-site & on-street parking than allowed for in the bylaw. It has also been ordered to cease & desist.

But other home-based business owners are worried that some, though not all, are being targeted for non-compliance with bylaw regulations which they consider unfair and overly restrictive — such as no employees allowed, no structural changes can be made to a home, and no delivery of goods to a home-based business. Many of these restrictions are more narrow than bylaws related to home owners. They're worried that a crack-down on restrictive regulations could mean the shutting down of businesses that contribute to the health & vitality of this community.

Public input sought on hwy safety issues

Starting in November, BCers will have a say on various highway safety issues, out of which will come recommendations for speed-limit adjustments to longer sections of rural highway between communities, improving vehicle flow and preventing wildlife-related collisions. Forums will be held in Kamloops, Chilliwack, Nanaimo, Prince George, Dawson Crk, Vancouver, Kelowna & Cranbrook, with additional communities added as necessary.

Speed-limit review: public input will be sought on which highway corridors should be considered.

Slower vehicles review: public input will be sought on what is considered a slow vehicle and corridors of concern (i.e. in the left lane, recreational vehicles, when towing, etc.) which reduce the efficiency of the hwy and can cause driver frustration.

Wildlife-corridor review: Public input will be sought on corridors of concern & areas where warnings could be enhanced.

Recommendations are due to be presented in spring 2014.
