NVIT receives award

NVIT recently received the Colleges and Institutes Canada's silver award for excellence in Aboriginal education. "Indigenous education is what we do," says president Ken Tourand, pointing to its First Nations board of governors, Elders Council, and the fact that 80% of its students are Aboriginal. Gold went to Yukon College for its ground-breaking arrangement with the territory's 14 First Nations, who are part of the president's advisory council on First Nations initiatives and a sounding board for administrators regarding programming & services.

The awards are new to CIC, which represents more than 135 colleges, CEGEPs & polytechnics, and were implemented in conjunction with their new Indigenous Education Protocol (which Ken was instrumental in implementing). To date more than 40 institutions have signed the protocol, agreeing to hire more Indigenous staff, meld Indigenous culture into the learning experience and recognize Indigenous land & governance agreements. Célébrons l'immersion française!

The BC government has proclaimed the first week of February French Immersion Celebration Week to support students and educators involved in French Immersion throughout the province.

Over the past 10 years, French immersion enrolment has increased by almost 40% in public schools. Over 50,000 students are currently enrolled in French immersion schools, both public & independent, throughout the province (that's almost 10% of the student population in BC's public school system). Close to $10 million a year comes from the federal government to support French as a second language education programs.

BC students who graduate from the French Immersion program receive 2 diplomas: the Dogwood Diploma & le diplôme de fin d'études secondaires (the French Dogwood). Last year, nearly 2,300 students graduated from the French Immersion program in the province.

Opinion

Merritt, the place you WOULD want to live!

It finally came to me this past weekend: Merritt is the place you WOULD want to live. (You know the saying: "It's a nice place to visit, ie. Vancouver, New York, Paris, Mexico... but I wouldn't want to live there".

For more than 23 years I've lived in Merritt; I know how I came to be here, but I'm always curious about why others choose to move here. I was especially interested after the population started shrinking, with the loss of Weyerhaeuser, provincial government offices, health care services, etc.

So I started asking new people that I met. There was usually a personal reason, which of course you could never guess at — to take care of an aging parent, be closer to grown children living in the Interior, a job with the school board. And what the majority of people also said is that "people are so friendly here!" That, I cannot dispute.

Somehow it remains after all this time that I feel I only ever know half the people here. And this means that Merritt never really gets claustrophobic, but stays fresh: a happy balance between the people you know & the people you don't. So my theory now is that for the people who remain, they live here because Merritt is an affordable, friendly, culturally diverse & beautiful homebase from which to venture out into the world. They travel & pursue their dreams, and then they happily return to their friends and this beautiful valley, back to their place in the world.

I'm not saying Merritt doesn't have its share of issues, but petty mini-melodramas are just fluff. And if you want to get involved and affect the change you want to see, there are any number of ways to do that. That's part of being home. —KL

Careful What You Wish For A government employee sits in his office and out of boredom, decides to see what's in his old filing cabinet. He pokes through the contents and comes across an old brass lamp. "This will look nice on my mantelpiece," he decides, and takes it home with him. While polishing the lamp, a genie appears and grants him 3 wishes. "I wish for an ice cold beer right now!" He gets his beer and drinks it. Now that he can think more clearly, he states his 2nd wish. "I wish to be on an island where beautiful women reside." Suddenly he is on an island with gorgeous females. He tells the genie his 3rd & last wish: "I wish I'd never have to work ever again." POOF! He's back in his office.
