No permanent pickle- ball in the sports box

City Council called a special meeting last evening to deal with a request from the Merritt Pickleball Club for exclusive access to the sports box (a requirement to be able to access New Horizons Grant for Seniors funding — to repair the surface and install permanent nets).

Residents opposed to this change to the sports box — specifically opposed to taking away the facility for use by the youth of the community — filled the council chambers. "There hasn't been that many people gone to a council meeting since we were protesting against the 'Country with Attitude' branding. It was a packed," posted one attendee.

Council voted against.

Summer solstice

In our part of the world, summer 2017 officially began yesterday, Tuesday, June 20, 2017 at 9:24pm PDT (Pacific Daylight Time). But is Wednesday, June 21, 2017 at 4:24am UTC (Universal Time Coordinated/Universal Coordinated Time, previously Greenwich Mean Time) in the UK.

Although the June solstice marks the 1st day of astronomical summer, it's more common to use meteorological summer — Jun 1 to Aug 31 — making the solstice 'midsummer'.

Lt-Gov's Throne Speech, tomorrow

Once a Speaker is in place (and the BC Liberals have said they'll volunteer one), Lt-Gov Judith Guichon is expected to read the Liberals' Speech from the Throne, tomorrow afternoon, June 22, 2pm.

The NDP will likely propose an amendment to the Throne Speech, which would be a vote of confidence, expected on June 29. If the Speaker is Liberal, the govt will have 42 votes; the NDP & Greens, with a combined total of 44, will defeat them.

Premier Christy Clark will then meet with the Lt-Gov and inform her that the government has lost the confidence of the legislature. Likely Ms. Clark will resign & clear the way for the NDP to form govt; she has previously said she is prepared to sit as Opposition Leader.

After accepting her resignation as Premier, the Lt-Gov will ask NDP Leader John Horgan to form govt. He would become premier-designate during a several weeks transition period, then be sworn in as Premier and appoint a cabinet.

The NDP would then recall the legislature, they've promised to do so within a month of forming govt. If the new Speaker is NDP, the standings in the legislature would be even: 43 votes on each side, with all tie-breaking votes from the Speaker.

The Lt-Gov would read the NDP's Speech from the Throne, and the eventual confidence vote would be tied. The Speaker would vote with their party to avoid an election. Then a budget passed, the NDP govt would turn its attention to tabling legislation. Well, that's what pundits expect will happen... Source: www.theglobeandmail.com
