Contaminated recyclables a growing issue, could end up in landfill

The TNRD is asking residents to be more vigilant about disposing of recyclable materials. This comes after the TNRD's recycling processor, Emterra Environmental, recently informed the TNRD that it would no longer be accepting mixed recycling, because of the high commination levels.

Due to international pressures, such as China's new "National Sword" policy, there is now no longer a market for mixed recycling with any level of contamination. This means that processors like Emterra cannot sell this product.

"The biggest source of contamination is from the municipal recycling depots and curbside-collected recycling," says Jamie Vieira, Manager of Environmental Services at the TNRD. "This is to be expected as there is no one monitoring what goes in the bin. It is up to individual residents if we are to avoid sending mixed recycling to landfill."

In response to this, the TNRD is asking for residents' help by ensuring that they are carefully following the accepted materials guidelines for mixed recycling to avoid contamination.

Contamination comes in several forms:

- food residues on otherwise acceptable items

- household garbage being put into mixed recycling bins

- items that are recyclable but are not part of the mixed recycling program.

The TNRD is working on changes to its recycling system to ensure recycling can continue. If you have questions, please contact the TNRD or go to tnrd.ca

High streamflow advisory

The River Forecast Centre says that while it is still too early in the snow melt season for significant flows in the larger river systems of the province, smaller streams and tributaries fed by low-to-mid elevation terrain are at the greatest risk of high flows over the next several days, including tributary flows around Merritt.

The advisory is in effect for the Okanagan, Similkameen, Kootenay, and Central Interior north to Williams Lake.

Route hearings for K-M's pipeline

The National Energy Board is resuming route hearings next week to hear from landowners who have raised concerns with the detailed route of the Trans Mountain Pipeline Expansion Project.

Hearings will run in Kamloops from May 1 to May 3 at Hotel 540 for landowners who have been granted a hearing. Hearings will then head to Merritt from May 8 to May 10 at the Merritt Civic Centre.

Route approval must be completed before construction can begin.
