Forest sector public input mtg in Merritt

In Kamloops, Merritt & Williams Lake, Aug. 11–17, representatives of communities & organizations most deeply involved & affected by the forest sector will be invited to attend — local & provincial elected officials, First Nations, and key forest sector stakeholders, industry, contractors, professionals and labour representatives — localized, in-person engagement sessions in communities throughout the Interior on an Interior Forest Sector Renewal discussion paper.

Members of the public are invited to participate in dialogue on the discussion paper by providing written submissions or feedback through an online survey at the engagement website: engage.gov.bc.ca/interiorforestrenewal

Specific policy areas the public is being asked for input include: forest tenure & fibre supply; climate change & forest carbon; manufacturing capacity & fibre use; wood products innovation; reconciliation with Indigenous communities; and fibre & sustainability of timber & non-timber forest values.

Thinking outside the box

If Suffering was a Tree

Many individuals desire to improve the conditions the people exist in, and every generation men and women effort toward this end. Yet, countless have come and gone and the status quo remains. This is so because those who desire a better world are trimming the branches and not pulling on the roots.

The roots are not unearthed and this is because the knowledge required to lift the masses above the artificial suffering induced by our current eco-political arrangement isn't taught, and most people who wish for a better world are not sacrificing to learn how to improve human existence. Passion without knowledge only convolutes the problem.

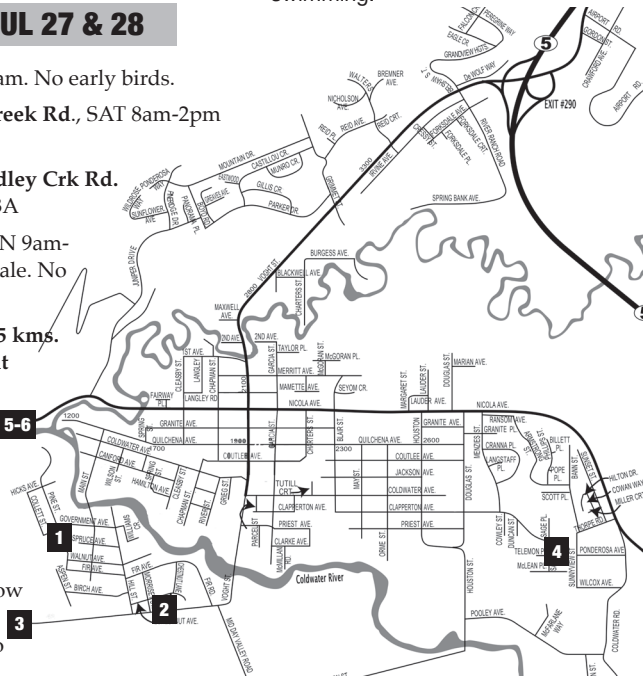

Like a Shakespearean tragedy, tragically, the required knowledge is allusive and no school is teaching this wisdom. A person must seek this knowledge without knowing where to begin the quest. To make the journey a little more hopeless, the knowledge is locked behind an unknown closed door, 50 feet thick, and guarded by 1000 armed men—metaphorically speaking. The task to learn how to make the world a better place and the causes of our hardship is Herculean. Yet, this is the duty of every living person—to discover why the world turns and how to turn it. With this understanding, a person might emancipate the planet, and with this understanding, a person has an opportunity to harmonize with heaven and live with true purpose. Without this awareness, does one truly live?

Now, where does one begin this quest for knowledge? The first step, as suggested by many great thinkers of our past such as Pythagoras and his three most notable successors—Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle, is to unlearn what an individual has learned, and to pay little mind to the manufactured popular information hand-downed by the overlords.
