More winter storm & snowfall warnings

Environment Canada issued more winter storm & snowfall warnings yesterday, for overnight into early today.

Merritt to Kamloops, a low pressure system moving over the south coast last evening spread snow to the Interior. Total snowfall amounts approaching 10 with up to 15 cm locally are expected before the snow eases by Wednesday morning. Gusty winds and the heavy snow may give poor visibilities at times.

For Hope to Merritt & Merritt to Kelowna, hazardous winter conditions were expected. The forecast for snowfall accumulation 20-35cm could create hazardous driving conditions, and blowing snow will cause reduced visibility.

Road conditions are available at www.drivebc.ca

Petition to remove Shackan Chief

The date has been set for a hearing to remove Shackan Chief Arnold Lampreau. The issue was first raised at a meeting in mid-October, by Shackan Band member Percy Joe. The official application for Removal of Chief was submitted November 22.

It states that Chief Lampreau has violated sections I through X of the Chief & Council Oath of Office — literally all of them. It required that 15% of Shackan eligible voters sign the petition in support of the application, and 31 petitioners did, of the 123 eligible voters.

The hearing will take place at the Comfort Inn and Suites on Dewolf Way on December 12 at 2pm. The Arbitrator’s decision will be provided to the Band Administrator & Council members within 21 days of the hearing.

Leslee Lucy's Christmas tree farm

Amid a provincewide shortage of Christmas trees, one Merritt farmer hopes to supply her community with trees in a few years. Leslee Lucy started planting trees two years ago during the first COVID-19 Christmas on her property along Coldwater Rd, south of town.

She started researching and thought she could grow them for family and friends. Then, she realized she could grow them for the community as well.

She planted 300 trees her first year but lost 60% of her crop with record-breaking heat in the valley. Tree farmers can expect to lose up to 30% of their trees in an average year.

Her second year, she provided more heat protection by leaving grass around the trees and bought 300 more, discovering balsam fir trees grow better than Douglas fir. She only lost 30% of her crop.

“I really enjoy it. I absolutely love getting out there and working in the trees, there’s something soul satisfying working with these baby trees and watching them grow,” Lucy said.

Roughly 300 trees are remaining from the last two years but they won’t be ready for sale at Lucy’s Christmas Tree Farm for about four years.

“My idea is to get my farm up to 500 trees and then once I get going just to sell 100 a year just locally,” she said. “The idea is to provide local trees to family friends and the community I live in.”

Wife: "How do I look?" Husband: "With your eyes."
