Fox Farm fire dealt with quickly

A wildfire along the Coquihalla, just south of town was dealt with quickly by Merritt Fire/Rescue, yesterday around 3pm. They were aided by a BC Wildfire Service helicopter, bucketing water from the nearby Coldwater River. Smoke was visible from town at the base of Iron Mountain. The cause of the fire is under investigation.

Alert for Carfentanil-tainted drugs

On Monday, Interior Health issued a province-wide drug advisory, about increasing detection of carfentanil in Down over the past month. They warn of high risk of overdose and fatal overdose.

The samples frequently contain benzodiazepines and tranquilizers, in addition to carfentanil. The combination of opioids with these substances amplify the effects of the drugs and significantly heightens the risk of overdose and death.

Carfentanil is up to 100X more potent than fentanyl. Up to 4% concentration of carfentanil has been detected in Down. This is equivalent to a fentanyl concentration of up to 400%.

IH advises that if you are going to use drugs, get them checked first. Find drug checking locations throughout the Interior at drugchecking.ca

Aerial mosquito control treatment

TNRD Nuisance Mosquito Control program will be administering aerial treatments for nuisance mosquitoes on July 9, near Lower Nicola, Quilchena, and Douglas Lake, though the timing of the aerial application could vary slightly based on weather conditions and helicopter availability.

Application involves the use of a low flying helicopter that will apply Vectobac to infested areas.

Vectobac is an organic water-dispersible granule formulation of Bacillus thuringiensis, a bacterial larvicide that is used to control of mosquito larvae. Vectobac 200G is not harmful to non-target organism populations including other aquatic animals, livestock or humans. As stated in the provincial Integrated Pest Management Act, no larvicide treatment can take place in permanent, fish-bearing bodies of water or waters that have permanent, direct, surface-water connections with fish-bearing bodies of water.

The TNRD mosquito reduction program began in 1971. At first, the program consisted solely of aerial applications to control adult populations of mosquitoes. With the advancement of new products such as biological larvicides, which do not harm fish habitats, the program has shifted to an environmentally safe practice of controlling mosquito larval populations before they emerge as adults.

Blue-green algae blooms

Algae are a natural part of the aquatic ecosystems of lakes and algae blooms can occur throughout the Interior Health region.

Blue-green algae are actually a microscopic bacteria called cyanobacteria. Cyanobacteria can live in waters through winter. In the warmer spring and summer months, cyanobacteria can multiply very quickly and produce several types of toxins that can be poisonous to people, pets and livestock.

"It's that time of year when we can see increased blue-green algae (cyanobacteria) blooms on lakes. These blooms tend to stay on the water surface and may have a leafy scent," says Interior Health medical health officer Dr. Andy Delli Pizzi. "Sometimes blooms can be toxic for those who come in contact with the water. My advice is to use common sense and avoid contact or consuming water if you suspect there is a cyanobacteria bloom."
