Pathfinders raise $700+ for Food Bank

The Merritt Pathfinders Unit of Girl Guides of Canada held a successful community fundraiser on Sunday, October 18, raising more than $700 for the Nicola Valley Food Bank.

The fundraiser was held at the Merritt Legion from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. and included a 50/50 draw, raffle baskets, and opportunities for community members to make donations.

In addition to raising more than $700, community members generously donated food and hygiene products, which were delivered to the Nicola Valley Food Bank.

The Pathfinders chose to support the food bank after learning that supplies were running low and that the organization had been asking the community for additional support. The fundraiser gave the Pathfinders an opportunity to take action and help people in their own community.

A special thank you goes to the Merritt Legion, which generously provided the space for the fundraiser at no cost. The Pathfinders would also like to thank Literacy Merritt for providing some books for donation and to everyone who donated, purchased tickets, contributed items, or helped make the event such a success.

The Merritt Pathfinders are proud to have raised more than $700 and collected much-needed supplies while helping make a difference in the Nicola Valley community.

— Pathfinders Hallie and Maisie Forbes Grahauer, Merritt Pathfinders Unit, Girl Guides of Canada

Pacific Time (PCT)

The transition to Pacific time, the name of BC's new time zone, is now complete. This weekend, on Nov. 1, when clocks would have been turned back an hour, no change will be made. BC previously observed Pacific Daylight Time (PDT) and Pacific Standard Time (PST) when clocks were changed in March and November of each year.

In summer 2019, public engagement on time observance saw participation from 223,273 people, with 93% supporting adopting year-round Daylight Saving Time.

Evidence suggests there are many benefits from adopting a year-round time standard, including:

- more consistency and fewer disruptions to sleep patterns and daily routines
- more usable light in the evenings in winter, allowing more leisure time, participation in outdoor activities and consumer activity
- reduced administrative burden for small businesses and service providers who may require less system re-programming, scheduling shifts and operational resets every spring and fall
- more consistency for planning across transportation and technology services

While the province's decision reflects strong public support, the full effects of the change remain uncertain. Dr. Patrick Baylis, an associate professor of economics at UBC, co-authored a study published in the Canadian

Q: Why did the ghost bring a ladder? A: To raise the spirits.

Q: Why don't skeletons fight each other? A: They don't have the guts.

Q: Why was the vampire so calm? A: Nothing could get under his skin.

Q: Why did the witch become a comedian? A: Her jokes always landed with a cackle.

Medical Association Journal that argues permanent standard time would be the healthier choice.

One of the most immediate concerns is what the change could mean for children travelling to school during the darkest months of the year.

With daylight arriving later, students could be walking, cycling or waiting for buses in darkness while commuters are also on the roads.

Baylis points to a 1974 experiment in the United States, when many parts of the country adopted year round daylight saving time in an effort to conserve energy. The policy was reversed after just one season, amid concerns about its consequences, including fatal incidents involving people travelling in the dark.

Baylis says research from the United States and Germany suggests later sunrises can be associated with lower productivity, raising questions about the broader economic impact of permanent daylight saving time.

“We find that when you have later sunrises, you have lower levels of productivity,” Baylis said.

Baylis says people may not fully appreciate the difference until they experience the later winter sunrises firsthand.

“It’s hard to know what it is going to feel like to not have light until 9:30 a.m. during the winter until you actually feel it,” he said.

Whether permanent daylight saving time delivers the brighter evenings people want without creating unexpected challenges in the morning is a question BC will have to answer as the season unfolds.
