Letter to the editor

For Merritt families far apart in December

an Advent calendar you fill yourself

Dear Merritt Morning Market team,

I should say up front: I don't live in Merritt — I make Advent App in Berlin. I'm writing because so many Nicola Valley families have someone far away in December — children in Kamloops, Vancouver or Calgary, family working away on rotation, grandchildren in other provinces — and the app was built for exactly that distance.

The idea: you fill 24 doors with your own photos, videos and voice messages and send the calendar as a link to someone who matters — grandparents in Merritt, a daughter in Vancouver, grandchildren in Edmonton. From December 1 they open one door every morning. It works both ways, too: grandchildren can fill one for their grandparents.

Making, sending and opening it is free (the free version shows a short ad before each door; ad-free and Pro are a one-time purchase per calendar). It's on iPhone, iPad and Android, in 20 languages, English and French included.

It started in 2013 in Berlin: two friends and I, and a friend of ours who was spending December in Australia, far from home. It has been made in Berlin ever since, and this year it came to Android for the first time.

This isn't an advertising or partnership request, just a tip for the editors.

Totally separate, and last so it doesn't read like a bribe: The Christmas Lights Tour item in issue 4303 made me smile: the Merritt Transit System taking people round the lights on Dec. 14, 15 and 16, with the $5 fare "donated to the NV Food Bank". Warm greetings from Berlin, Eve

CNA and K'en T'em working with Teck on T&R Action Plan

CNA and K'en T'em were present to witness the launch of Teck's North America Truth and Reconciliation Action Plan, released earlier this month. "This public commitment follows years of advocacy by our communities. Through CNA's working group, our communities have made clear what reconciliation must mean at Highland Valley Copper. We appreciate Teck's recognition of CNA's contribution to shaping the plan. In 2015, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada (TRC) explained that reconciliation requires acknowledging the painful history of colonization, particularly the Indian residential school system, repairing damaged trust, and taking concrete action to change behaviour and policies.

Economic reconciliation means our communities must share in the prosperity this mine creates. Teck's plan commits to removing barriers in contracting and strengthening pathways for Indigenous workers into technical, supervisory and leadership roles. At Highland Valley Copper, that should mean Indigenous businesses have a fair chance to win contracts, our people can build careers and advance, and our communities' priorities help shape long-term economic decisions.

Our members must also be able to come to work free from racism, harassment and violence, be represented fairly, and speak up knowing action will follow. Teck and union leadership both have a responsibility to make that happen.

We will continue working through our Participation Agreement to ensure our communities' values shape decisions at Highland Valley Copper and to hold Teck accountable for following through. Whoever owns the mine, the commitment to our communities must carry forward. Ownership may change. Our communities expect every commitment to be honored from day one." fb/KentemLimitedPartnership

Teck Releases North America Truth and Reconciliation Action Plan

On November 5, Teck released its North America Truth and Reconciliation Action Plan, setting commitments to respond to Indigenous priorities, strengthen relationships with Indigenous Peoples, and integrate Truth and Reconciliation as a guiding framework for their activities across North America.

"Grounded in respect and transparency, Teck has made a commitment to:

- Reflect honestly on our past and the legacy of our operations in North America
- Identify and manage current impacts on Indigenous lands, waters, communities and relationships in North America
- Understand and support the priorities and goals of the Indigenous Peoples that Teck works with in North America
- Share learnings openly with peers in the industry and beyond to contribute meaningfully to the important work of North American Truth and Reconciliation

The action plan was shaped through engagement with Indigenous governments, Indigenous leaders, Elders, thought leaders, community members and employees from across the North American areas where Teck operates. Teck is grateful for the time, care and intention shared with us in developing this North America Truth and Reconciliation Action Plan.

Christine Walkem, Chief of Cook's Ferry Indian Band and Chair of Citxw Nlaka'pamux Assembly: "As nłe?képmx, our responsibility to our people, our land, and future generations guides what we expect from reconciliation. Teck's action plan is a step in the right direction, with the work of meeting our communities' expectations still ahead. Its value will be demonstrated through decisions that respect our rights, give our people a meaningful role in shaping what happens in our territory, and honour the commitments made to us. Our responsibility is to hold that work to account. Our children and grandchildren deserve to inherit the lasting change these commitments must deliver."
